A League of His Own

Systems Designer: Electronics Design Group (EDG), Piscataway, NJ

You could say this project was all about teamwork for Electronics Design Group (EDG) in Piscataway, NJ, as close coordination with the architect, designer and general contractor led to the ultimate home sports venue.

And though it may look like the home of a professional basketball player, the homeowner is like many sports fans who enjoy playing sports as much as watching them.

So this passionate fan built a basketball court in his home. And if you build it, they will come: He also established his own basketball league. There's no waiting for court-time any more. And the court is not just used by the big kids: The homeowner's children enjoy priority court-time as well. Talk about having a home-court advantage.

In the comfortable adjoining entertainment room, family members and friends experience the dual action of a 70-inch TV and a surround-sound system that bring them televised sporting events as they keep score with the real home team.

As with any great team plan, the overall lighting and home systems are tied into the main house for complete control.

Professional sports arenas should be as well outfitted.

HOME COURT

← FOCUS While on the basketball court, the home team doesn't miss a beat of what is going on with their favorite teams. The JBL Control 8 speakers broadcast play-by-play action throughout the court.
